State Gets Brief Showers

Benefit To Corn Is Slight

Temps Fall 19 Degrees As Light Rain Hits City

Scattered showers fell Sunday in the eastern half of the state giving brief—but only temporary—respite from the heat. Rains ranged up to one-half inch at Brainard.

Although the rain was welcome, it proved to be not much of a benefit to the area's thirsty corn.

The light rain which fell in Lincoln Sunday afternoon left only .07 of an inch behind but gave Lincolinites quite a relief from the heat. Temperatures dropped 19 degrees between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. Sunday during the brief storm.

A. E. Anderson, state-federal crop statistician, said the Sunday showers "will only prolong the agony until we get a good rain." He pointed out that where the corn and the ground is dry and hot, rain turns to steam as soon as it falls. Anderson added that the showers would tide the corn along for a few days and "helped some—but not substantially."

The corn needs a rain measuring one and one-half to two inches to save it, Anderson added.

The forecast Monday calls for more scattered showers and thundershowers. The Weather Bureau looks for little relief from the heat, except to predict it would be cooler in the extreme northeast during the day.

High temperatures Monday are expected to reach the 80s in the northwest and the upper 90s in the extreme southeast.

Lincoln received only a trace of rain in brief showers Sunday afternoon and evening.

Wayne had a rain measuring .35 of an inch and Wahoo received approximately .25 in a 15-minute shower.

Crete, Humboldt, and Falls City reported no rains.

Earlier in the weekend, David City received .25 of an inch of rain. Showers also fell in the Humboldt, Auburn, and Pawnee City areas.

Showers also fell in the area east of Lincoln, with Syracuse and Nebraska City residents reporting light rains.

Japanese Orphan One Step Nearer New Odell Home

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate has passed and sent to the President a bill to admit to this country a Japanese orphan, who has been adopted by a Nebraska couple.

The bill would allow the five-year-old child, Ruth Rumako Fukano, the status of a non-quota immigrant, which is the status normally enjoyed by the alien minor children of United States citizens.

The child has been adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Vance, of Odell, Neb.

VFW Delegates Honor War Dead

MILWAUKEE (INS)—The 54th annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars opened Sunday in Milwaukee with memorial services honoring the 25,000 Americans killed in the Korean War.

Business sessions for the six-day meeting will begin Monday morning. Some 7,000 delegates and at least twice that many guests are expected to attend the encampment.

Rhee Redefines Views On Eve Of Dulles' Visit

Pledges To Honor Allies Of America Word To U.S.

SEOUL (Monday) (AP)—President Syngman Rhee pledged Sunday that the Republic of Korea would co-operate completely with the United States during a political conference with the Communists so long as the U.N. "stands firmly" by its objectives of re-uniting this divided country.

The statement was released as Secretary of State Dulles left Washington for conferences this week with Rhee following his arrival here Tuesday (Monday CST).

Restating his views, Rhee made clear that South Korea had only postponed its own efforts to unite Korea "for a certain time limit" of several months, while the Allies try unification by political means.

In the past he has mentioned 90 days of political efforts with the Reds as his time limit.

"So long as the U.N. stands firmly by that objective (unification) there will be no reason for Korea to take any unilateral action," he said. "If the U.N. should retreat from that position we should then have to face the situation alone."

In discussing policy at the forthcoming political conference—one of the subjects Dulles has announced he would take up Rhee declared bluntly:

"Some of the United Nations are inclined to seek temporary security for themselves by appeasement of the common enemy. This may postpone their own fall before aggression but will only make them the last victim instead of one of the first."

He warned that the Communists "of course will use the peace arrangements for their own benefit."

As for Korean policy, Rhee said: "It is well known that this government took the position it could not accept either a truce or a peace until the Chinese aggressors had been evacuated from Korea, which would automatically reunite this nation."

"In recent talks with Mr. Robertson (U.S. Assistant Secretary of State) Walter S. Robertson, however, we agreed to postpone the achievement of our objective for a few months while President Eisenhower tries his own plan to re-unify Korea by political means."

We shall abide by our agreement not to obstruct the armistice and we hope President Eisenhower's plan may succeed through the armistice and political conference."

—POW Return— U.N. Stages 'Big Switch' Renealsal

Wednesday To Bring First Daily Exchange

PANMUNJOM (Monday)
(INS) — The United Nations Command today prepared for "Operation Big Switch" by staging a rehearsal of prisoner exchange routines and by shipping additional thousands of Communist captives from prison islands in South Korea.

At the same time the joint Allied-Communist Military Armistice Commission met for the sixth time and agreed to locate their permanent headquarters near Panmunjom and exactly on the line of demarcation.

Panmunjom itself is northwest of the demarcation line and on the Communist side of the line. Senior Allied Commissioner Maj. Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan explained:

"This way, I won't have to go to him (the Communists), and he won't have to come to me. I tried to put the headquarters in a completely neutral spot."

Alternate chiefs of the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission — the watchdogs of the armistice — also met at Panmunjom this morning to continue the job of establishing the machinery for armistice inspection.

The rehearsal for "Operation Big Switch" was not held at Panmunjom as originally scheduled because Communist approval of the area was received too late.

Fifty soldiers who took part in the rehearsal played the role of Communist captives being returned to the Allies.

The first of the 12,763 prisoners who will return from Communist captivity, including some of the 3,313 Americans now in Red hands, will be exchanged Wednesday for Chinese and North Korean prisoners of war.

The exchange will be continued daily until all Allied soldiers and the 74,000 Red POWs who wish to return to communism have been repatriated.

Wood Address Opens State Legion Meet

OMAHA (P) — A report by Commander Warren C. Wood of Gering opened the 35th annual convention of the Nebraska American Legion department here Sunday.

More than 3,000 Legionnaires are expected to participate in sessions, which continue through Tuesday.

Wood said the Legion's membership increase in Nebraska during the past year can be attributed to worthwhile work in the fields of child welfare, citizenship and Americanism.

He reported Nebraska membership totaled 56,000, an increase of nearly 2,000 the past year.

The state commander emphasized that "careless operation of bars, slot machines and under-cover gambling contribute little to the American Legion program."

Albert Held, finance committee chairman, said net worth of the state department was $84,048 in cash and bonds.

The child welfare chairman, Randall Birt, urged Legion posts to give more thought to kids than clubs.

News Around The Globe

Jackson Critical Of Some Unions

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) said Sunday some Communist-dominated labor unions—and not the Protestant clergy—probably make up the largest single group of Red supporters.

Jackson described as "false on its face" a charge by J. B. Matthews that "the largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States today is composed of Protestant clergymen."

Matthews made the statement in a magazine article. The furor that resulted from Matthews' statement caused him to resign as chief of the staff of the Senate investigating subcommittee headed by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Jackson was a subcommittee member until he and the two other Democratic members resigned in protest of subcommittee action that gave McCarthy full authority to hire and discharge staff members.

Convicts Protest

RAHWAY, N. J. (P)—Convicts at Rahway State Prison Farm, who mutinied for five days last year, cut loose with a noisy, one-hour demonstration Sunday night against the institution's superintendent and the State Parole Board.

The demonstration apparently was carefully planned, for a letter was sent to the Newark Star-Ledger telling of it beforehand. The letter was brought to the newspaper office by an unidentified woman.

The prisoners began to hammer in cadence on bars of their cell doors and bunks about 9:00 p.m. CST. The uproar, accompanied by shouts, lasted for about an hour.

In their letter the prisoners charged that Supt. R. William Lagay had "told several deliberate lies in his defense to his superiors" about a demonstration that took place last Sunday.

Anyone Surprised?

ST. ALBANS, Eng. (P)—Ivy Young, 26-year-old London typist, was crowned Miss British Nudist of 1953 Sunday at an outing of 300 men, women and children clad in their birthday suits.

Miss Young, a comely brunette, was asked by reporters what she intended to do with the 10 pound ($28) prize. "Buy a dress," she replied.

Prince On Way To U.S.

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (P)—Prince Bernhard left by plane Sunday night for New York and Cape Cod, where he will visit his vacationing daughters—Princesses Beatrix and Irene.

Later—in his capacity as inspector general of the Royal Dutch Navy—Bernhard will make an inspection tour of Curacao, Aruba and Bonaire in the Dutch Antilles.

Queen Juliana, who saw her husband off at Schiphol Airport, said she was sorry she was not in a position to accompany him.

Criticizes Appointment

NEW YORK (INS)—Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt (D-NY) asserted Sunday night that a President Eisenhower's appointment of Gov. James Byrnes of South Carolina as a U.N. delegate was a "slap in the face of our friends" in the United Nations.

Roosevelt, appearing on a television program, said he believed the appointment was "tactless and unnecessary" in light of Byrnes' "views on segregation and discrimination."

—Investigator— McCarthy To Request New Probe

Some War Decisions
Draw Senator's Wrath

CUMBERLAND, Wis. (P)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) said Sunday night he is drafting a bill ordering a grand jury investigation of individuals responsible for "loss of American lives in Korea through criminal incompetence or treason."

McCarthy addressed about 250 persons at a welcoming home dinner for M. Sgt. Rodney Mettner, 24-year-old infantryman who was awarded two Distinguished Service Crosses and other honors for gallantry in action during two tours of duty in Korea.

The Wisconsin Republican said that the unnamed individuals of whom he spoke "can not go unpunished if we are to keep faith with Sgt. Mettner and the thousands of other boys who risked everything in Korea."

McCarthy addressed about 250 persons at a welcoming home dinner for M. Sgt. Rodney Mettner, 24-year-old infantryman who was awarded two Distinguished Service Crosses and other honors for gallantry in action during two tours of duty in Korea.

He said no one knows how many traitors are still hiding out in Washington, but he said they must be dug out.

"Unless we do that," he said, "my party will be almost equally guilty with the traitors."

He said 140,000 young men paid with their blood in Korea because of incompetency and treason that resulted in such things as ammunition shortages, decisions not to bomb bridges on the Yalu River, and orders to American troops to stop pursuing a fleeing enemy.

Earlier, in an interview, McCarthy questioned the wisdom of President Eisenhower's decision to continue military aid to Britain and three other free world nations even though they have sent strategic goods to Iron Curtain nations.

"I think it is a tremendous mistake not to some way penalize our alleged allies who are building up the war potentials of the Communist countries," McCarthy told a newsman when asked to comment on the President's week-end announcement.

He added: "We have said to American businessmen not to ship to Communist countries. I think it is wrong therefore for our allies to be shipping (strategic materials)."

Shape Waterways Early For Better Seed Bed Results

By V. H. PETERSEN
Lancaster County Agent
Shape Waterways Early

It's too dry to shape waterways for seeding here in Lancaster County, at least of this date. Normally, we think of June and July as the best months for this job. Grass and legume seedings need a good seed bed and by shaping the waterways early you will be able to get a better bed. This is particularly true when heavy equipment is used to make the waterway. Good waterways can be made right ahead of seeding; however, if enough work is done.

After the waterway has been properly shaped, care must be taken to obtain a level, well-packed seed bed. If heavy equipment has been used, particularly when the ground is wet, it will probably be desirable to plow the waterway. The seed bed then can be obtained by disking and harrowing. Care should be taken not to make ridges with the disc. Good results have been obtained when a packer has been used; however, disking and harrowing several times will prove successful.

A good insurance for success in establishing a good grass sod is to manure the waterway heavily. If this is done before seeding time in August, the manure can be disked into the upper layer of soil and will then provide protection against erosion in the waterway as well as providing fertility. When manure is not available, straw, corn cobs, or some residue used as a mulch will provide good protection against erosion until the grass becomes established.

Good grassed waterways are the first step in starting a soil and water conservation program on a farm. Fall seeding is usually the most successful. This is because rainfall is usually lighter and less likely to injure the seed before it is established. There is also less competition from weeds.

Piccioni Ready To Try Hand In Italy Crisis

ROME (P) — Attilio Piccioni, 61-year-old advocate of a go slow reform policy for Italy, agreed provisionally Sunday to try to form a new government.

The graying Christian Democrat who helped pioneer aviation in Italy conferred for three hours with President Luigi Einaudi. Piccioni then told newsmen he would start a round of discussions to be aimed at putting together a cabinet.

Piccioni, an outspoken foe of fascism throughout the Mussolini era, said he would meet with former Premier Alcide De Gasperi and presidents of the Italian Chamber of Deputies and Senate before giving a final reply to Einaudi. The Chamber refused to give De Gasperi a vote of confidence last week.

De Gasperi will be offered the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, which he held in the last government.

As leader of the right wing of the center Christian Democrat party, Piccioni is expected to slow up on land reform and edge closer to conservatism if he becomes Prime Minister. De Gasperi is considered more liberal than Piccioni.

Bill Passes Senate Giving 'Overjoyed' Lincolnite $12,500

Col. Harry F. Cunningham, 2457 So. 27th, said he was "overjoyed" to receive news of the Senate passing a bill enabling him to collect $12,500 from the U.S. government.

Cunningham said he had been working for a long time to collect money owed him for designing a proposed new German Embassy in Washington, D. C., in 1939.

The House previously had passed a similar measure. The bill now goes to the President for his signature. The bill was introduced for Cunningham by Rep. Carl Curtis and Sen. Dwight Griswold.

Cunningham was engaged by the German government to design an embassy but dropped the work when the German Army marched into Czechoslovakia. Before he could collect his salary, the German assets in the U.S. were under the authority of the alien property custodian.

Leaders Hope Congress Can Wind Up Work By Tonight

President Summons Top Aids

WASHINGTON (P)—President Eisenhower Sunday called in for a Monday breakfast the men most concerned with trying to raise the federal debt limit, only hours before Congress was expected to adjourn.

The brief White House announcement of the breakfast did not say even that the subject would be discussed, and gave no hint of what action, if any, might be planned.

The Senate Finance committee handed the Eisenhower Administration a major defeat Saturday night in voting 11-4 to take no action on the president's request that the debt limit be raised from $275 to $290 billion.

With only four major items of legislation still to be handled, congressional leaders expressed confidence the session can be ended Monday night unless unexpected difficulties arise.

The White House said only that the president would breakfast with Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.), acting majority leader; Sen. Millikin (R-Colo.), chairman of the finance committee; Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge; Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey; and Maj. Gen. Wilton Persons, the president's principal liaison man with Congress.

Observers expressed doubt that the White House breakfast would spark any new drive for immediate action on the request.

The conference could, however, pave the way for recalling Congress this fall to reconsider the situation as it exists at that time.

With the federal debt now standing at about $272 billion and major money needs still to be met, Humphrey has said that if the limit is not raised the government might not be able to meet its payroll or pay its bills. Such a situation, he said, "would just cause a near panic."

Finance Committee members say no such need, however. Several said the Treasury has ample funds to meet its needs until January, and implied that no special session would be needed.

Four Major Items
Still to be disposed of are these major items:

1. The $6,652,422,390 foreign aid bill agreed to by a Senate-House conference committee and already approved in that form by the House.

2. Extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act, long delayed by House insistence that the Tariff Commission be increased from six to seven members.

3. A $615,989,964 supplemental appropriation bill including 200 million dollars for Korean relief, $70,100,000 for aid to school construction in defense-affected areas, $75,000,000 for the new United States Information Agency and $46,500,000 for civil defense.

4. The $1,100,000,000 regular appropriation bill for the State, Commerce and Justice Departments, which still is before a conference committee.

Senate Republicans will meet Tuesday to name a successor to Taft as Republican leader, but that will not affect the adjournment date. That will be determined by the speed with which the Senate acts. There is no limitation on Senate debate and if a controversy develops in the closing hours, it could touch off lengthy speech-making which would continue the session.

Taft Family Follows Casket Into Capitol

Members of the family followed as soldiers carry the body of Sen. Robert A. Taft in the flag-draped casket up the slope of the Capitol Sunday to lie in state in the rotunda. A crowd gathered nearly two hours before the public was to be admitted. Horace Taft, a son, and his wife are in the center of the family group. The others were not identified. (AP Wirephoto Sunday Night.)

Thousands Pay Homage At Taft Bier

WASHINGTON (AP)—An estimated 36,000 persons—most of them just plain people—passed in silent homage beside the body of Sen. Robert A. Taft Sunday as it lay in state beneath the great gray dome of the nation's Capitol.

For nearly seven hours—from 12:47 p.m. CST to 7:03 p.m.—the multitudes filed past the rose-covered bronze casket.

Taft died in New York Friday of cancer. Sunday the Senate majority leader's body was brought to Washington to rest briefly within the circular rotunda of the Capitol.

Except for a few congressmen, those who viewed the casket were average citizens. In the first two hours nearly 12,000 persons filed by. Then the lines thinned.

At sunset the lines lengthened again, the people in them predominantly older persons, some of whom had to be helped up the Capitol steps. Three women were all in black.

Guards had planned to keep the rotunda open later if enough mourners came to the Capitol. But with the lines gone, the doors were closed and the lights dimmed.

Only the four-man military guard remained.

The head of the casket faced west. At the right stood an American banner and at the left the Ohio state flag. At each corner, perhaps 8 or 10 feet away, a soldier was stationed. The officer of the guard of honor took his place at the head of the casket.

The family preferred that the casket not be opened during the six hours the public was permitted to file by.

Shortly before the public was admitted to the rotunda, an American flag covering the coffin was removed and replaced with a blanket of roses provided by the Taft family.

Various other floral pieces were arranged around the base of the catafalque, and bright flowers decorated the bases of statues circling the rotunda.

When the public was admitted to the rotunda a few

From Lincoln Pulpits:

Use Of Knowledge Measure Of Character—Rev. Swanson

The burden of knowledge for the Christian man or woman is his accountability to God, the Rev. J. Sabin Swanson told his congregation at a First Lutheran Church Sunday morning.

Preaching his first sermon in Lincoln, Rev. Swanson said the use of knowledge is a measure of character.

"Truth to the scientist may be simple, isolated facts," he said. "The mathematician knows that two and two equals four, and he might stop at that conclusion. The physicist knows that by various combinations of protons, neutrons, and a host of 'etceteras' unknown to most people, there is produced atomic energy. And he may stop at that conclusion."

But, he said, the scientist who does not isolate truth, sees an atom bomb as a means of destroying an enemy or atomic energy as a means of promoting peace. When simple facts meet responsibility, he said, the "burden of knowledge" is born.

"The highest knowledge that can come to a people is that God has called us to be saved people through His son Jesus Christ," he said, "and that He has also called us to live the Christian life in our God-appointed vocation."

Rev. Swanson said that with this knowledge, there must be a "burden," the burden is that of asking "saved for what?" as well as saying "I'm saved," he said.

A congregation is also accountable to God, he said. Christian church membership involves responsibility none can honestly seek to escape, he said.

Rev. Swanson came to First Lutheran Church from the Wausau Lutheran Church. He also is president of the Nebraska Conference of the Augustana Lutheran Church.

Eastridge Presbyterian
Rev. Thomas C. Huxtable also preached his first sermon in Lincoln Sunday morning. Rev. Huxtable has been appointed minister of the recently-organized Eastridge Presbyterian Church which now meets at Holmes School.

"Helping others to find Christ, telling of our faith, brings Him into proper focus in our own lives," Rev. Huxtable told his congregation. "It is our responsibility to see that those for whom we care and love know Him."

He said men should take Christ into their lives until they share the fervor of the early disciples on the Emmaus Road who said, "Did not our hearts burn within us while He opened to us the scripture?" That is the spirit of every disciple of Christ, he said.

Christ means much to each man in times of temptation, trouble, sorrow, disappointment, decision and in the home, he said.

"Somewhere I have read that one out of every three unchurched families end in divorce," Rev. Huxtable said. "With those people with church connections, it is one in fifty. Christ means much to us in giving purpose to life, in saving us from false loyalties."

Rev. Huxtable came to Lincoln from the Deshler Presbyterian Church.

Church of Christ
Christians may have the assurance of a home in heaven, the Rev. Hershel L. Dyer said at Church of Christ Sunday morning.

He said only the knowledge of hope can:

"1. Give us the comfort of soul and peace of mind.

"2. Strengthen us so much in time of trial and temptation.

"3. Make us so firm and decided in our choice of Christ as our leader and savior."

Earthly pain and sorrow should make men long for more than mere death, Rev. Dyer said. Suffering, he said, should make men prepare for the world that knows no death, no decay, no separation and no sorrow.

Lincoln's Main Dependence

Deputy City Engineer Carl Fisher expressed disappointment because the first of three wells to be added to Lincoln's water system may not contribute as much water as was hoped. These wells are located in Lincoln or its environs, tapping the Salt Creek Basin for water. They are, it will be noted, something of a stopgap development in the long-range program of increasing Lincoln's water supply through the construction of a second pipeline tapping the Platte River sands near Ashland.

They will be incorporated into the permanent program as an integral part of it. Whatever additional water they may supply will be welcome, and doubly so since the most optimistic estimates suggest it will take until 1955 to sink additional wells at Ashland and complete the 48-inch main supplementing the present one now furnishing the people of Lincoln with the bulk of their water. If the new well that has been dug will supply only 700,000 gallons daily instead of the hoped-for million gallons a day, it only confirms the basic study which led to the decision of this community to go to the expense of drawing on the Platte River sands for water.

Under the leadership of the late J. E. Miller, working with a distinguished group of Lincoln citizens, it was determined more than 20 years ago that the people of Lincoln would be short-sighted to rely on wells in the Antelope Valley for water. At that time the tests and the studies made were painstaking and comprehensive. We need without delay the additional pumping facilities for which the people of Lincoln provided the money in an unprecedented vote on a bond issue involving the expenditure of more than 8 million dollars. We need more pumps, more storage facilities, additional reservoirs. We need the new pipeline to bring additional water from Ashland, and miles of newly-installed mains.

But first of all, perhaps, there is need for the reminder that in planning after exhaustive research and study, the conclusion was reached by a capable group of men that the chief source of water supply for Lincoln is the Platte River sands. The most important business confronting this community is to get along with the water program without permitting a single day to be wasted.

In fact, the entire state of Nebraska, lulled into forgetfulness by an unprecedented cycle of wet years, awakens to the fact that water is the basic necessity of every healthy community in Nebraska.

We had forgotten irrigation in this state because of a few kind years of abundant rainfall.

The need for an expanded irrigation program has been all too apparent in the last two weeks.

Of Men And Things

"It would seem that if such action were believed to be necessary (raising the debt limit of the federal government), it should have been taken weeks ago, and not on the eve of adjournment," the Virginian, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, says in a statement to the American press, a copy of which is on the desk in front of the editor. Sen. Byrd is unhappy. He supported President Eisenhower in Virginia against the nominee of his own party, largely as rebuke to federal spending.

There is some basis for his criticism of the President for permitting the debt-ceiling issue to hang fire until the eve of the day members of Congress expected to pack up their duds and take leave of Washington.

The present administration got a lot of votes on its promises of economy, a balanced budget, and a reduction in the tax burdens. Sen. Byrd now wants Congress to give thought to raising the ceiling on the federal debt. He makes a convincing case, although it seems to us he ignores the most serious step taken by the Treasury Department under Eisenhower in order to emphasize the national debt. Very few Americans seem to have grasped fully the significance of raising interest rates on government securities. The practical effect of this decision will be to nullify much or all of the steps taken to save money and to balance the federal budget.

Sen. Byrd does put it this way: "We should take note of the fact that Treasury bonds bearing 2½ per cent interest now are selling from seven to eight points under par, and that until the last several days the Treasury bonds bearing 3¼ per cent interest were selling below par. Assuming an average of 3 per cent interest on this debt, it means an expenditure of 8 billion dollars, plus a year in interest alone. It so happens that this figure is only a little less than the deficit of the last fiscal year and the deficit expected in the present fiscal year. In other words, what we are doing is borrowing to pay interest, thereby incurring the added burden of compounded interest. In 25 years at this rate, we will spend 200 billion dollars for interest alone and this compounded will about equal the present debt."

What Sen. Byrd is saying is common knowledge to every thoughtful American man and woman, but a subject to which few give thought. Interest works every second of the day. It does not knock off at five in the afternoon to take up again at eight in the morning. The decision made by the Eisenhower administration to boost the interest rates of government bonds is one of the tragic blunders of the first six months of the great crusade. The objective in the beginning was to apply the brakes to inflation by discouraging borrowing. Actually in practice it has contributed to inflation. All through the early years of the Roosevelt administration, with the enormous demands on it to combat first depression and unemployment, and then a severe drought affecting 24 of the 48 states and bringing ruin to the countryside, at no time did the extraordinary demands call for in excess of 10 billion dollars annually for the normal needs of government. The national debt jumped from 22 billion dollars to approximately 38 billion dollars. Then with World War II, the lid was off and the debt climbed from 38 billion dollars to 258 billion dollars at the close of that struggle. The postwar period and its cold war—with all its security requirements—boosted that debt from 258 billion dollars to the present level of 272 billion dollars.

There is a nutshell is the measure of the mistake made by the Treasury when it decided to raise interest rates. Balanced against a reduction in federal jobs, and decreased appropriations for federal agencies, the increase in interest requirements on the debt leaves the administration in the position of nullifying its own efforts.

Note: Since this was written, Eisenhower's request to lift the ceiling on the national debt 15 billions was rejected overwhelmingly in the Senate committee.

from a deputy in the attorney general's office in Washington.

It was not that the term to which Mr. Votava had been appointed had expired.

Were he to serve out the full term, the office would be vacant in July, 1955.

Nor is the change at this time due to any lack of attention to duty by Mr. Votava. He has been a capable district attorney, respected by the people of this state as a man of ability and fine purpose. Mr. Votava's retirement—he has been district attorney since 1935—is a part of the American political system. The office is not a part of the classified civil service or the merit system. It is one of those jobs subject to change when there is a change in incoming and outgoing administrations.

In his traditionally blunt language, Mr. Votava said he believed he had been asked to resign simply for political reasons because "they want a Republican in here." In cheerful spirit, without quibbling over the fact that his term had not run out, he said he was willing to accommodate them. Those who have known Mr. Votava through the years will appreciate that there was a twinkle in his eye when he announced his retirement.

No doubt his successor, Donald R. Ross, a practicing attorney and the mayor of Lexington, Neb., well known to the people of his part of the state, is a man of fine qualifications. Both Sen. Hugh Butler and Sen. Dwight Griswold had joined in recommending him.

An Old Story

"Taunts in American newspapers are answered by gibes in English newspapers; bitter speeches by American senators are cabled to England, and hurt, and are answered by stinging satire," wrote a correspondent. "Is the world not old enough to get rid of all that silly, childish barbarism? Has it learned no lesson at all out of the massacre of its youth on the altars of stupidity? Are civilized peoples to go on flinging mud at each other for sport, . . . uttering provocative cries like dirty little school-boys to each other, for the sake of scoring off each other in newspapers and political debates, careless of the horrible dangers which are thereby caused?"

The above was written 33 years ago—on May 5, 1920. It appeared in the New Republic under the byline of Philip Gibbs, the late English war correspondent, whose dispatches appeared frequently in The Lincoln Star.

The Last Roundup

The death of a deputy sheriff in Lander, Wyo., normally would not receive much attention outside his home county, but the passing of Albert J. Farlow will mean something to anyone who has ever seen a Wyoming license plate. His silhouette, holding tight to the saddle on a fiercely bucking horse, is the one printed on all Wyoming plates.

He's one buckaroo who in the best cowboy tradition "never got thrown." He achieved a kind of fame through the years whenever a Wyoming automobile owner hit the road outside his own borders.

Sooner Or Later

Congress prepares to adjourn after a hot session. Right at the start the lawmakers admitted we faced some grave problems, and now they plan to return next year to try to solve some of them.

Robertson Says Truce Serves As A Stopgap

WASHINGTON—Here is the inside story of how Assistant Secretary of State Walter Robertson finally persuaded President Syngman Rhee to accept a truce in Korea. The story also gives the key to why Robertson and Secretary of State Dulles are flying back to Korea—for they regard the truce as a mere stopgap which could cause the United States more headaches than assets.

In fact Robertson, speaking privately, has been less than enthusiastic about the truce.

"The truce," he said, "will present much more difficult problems than will solve, when you consider the overall position of the United States in the struggle with Russia. However, I do not make policy. I carry it out. If you know of a more frustrated man than yours truly, I would like to meet him."

Walter Robertson, incidentally, is one of the real finds of the Eisenhower administration. Shrewd, patient, with a persuasive personality, it is easy to see how he finally won Syngman Rhee into his corner.

Robertson wooed him largely by listening. He let the aged President of Korea pour his heart out.

"The old man is a great patriot," Robertson confided to friends. "Stubborn, yes, but not for himself, only for his country. I was told that the way to handle Rhee was to go in and pound the table. But I said, 'If table-pounding will do it, why hasn't he been brought into line before?'"

The way Robertson finally persuaded Rhee to co-operate was by arguing that what Communist China really wants is something much more important than Korea. It wants trade with Japan and the rest of the world; and especially it wants access to the tin, rubber and raw materials of Indo-China and the Malays.

Therefore, Robertson argued, China will trade Korean unity for these bigger objectives.

These objectives, however, present serious problems for the U.S., and this is the chief reason Robertson is flying back to Tokyo and Seoul with Secretary Dulles.

"The barren hills of North Korea mean little to the Chinese," Robertson told friends, "compared to their major objectives. That's why the Chinese were so anxious to sign a truce; also why our problems are just beginning."

"The Western trade embargo is affecting them much more than we realize, and they want to get rid of it. Also they want a seat on the United Nations Security Council so badly that it hurts. If they can get some of these things, they should gladly toss away the barren hills of North Korea."

This is the real reason why Robertson has mixed feelings about a truce. Dr. Syngman Rhee, he thinks, will get what he wants—the unity of Korea. But China will then begin a drive for what she really wants—the vast riches of Southeast Asia, the tin and rubber of the Malays, the wealth of Indo-China, the quinine, the spices, the rubber of Indonesia. This was the main goal of Japan during the war, and it's the main goal of Communist China today.

"This is an area which hates its past rulers, the British, the French and the Dutch," diagnosed Robertson. "But this area admires the Chinese. Because the Chinese have stood up against the Western world."

This, Robertson explains, is why he is so worried about the political peace conference which follows the Korean truce.

MCCARRAN VS. DIRKSEN

They didn't quite come to blows, but Nevada's bantam-sized, 77-year-old Sen. Pat McCarran tried to egg Illinois' hefty, 57-year-old Sen. Everett Dirksen into a fist fight the other day behind closed doors of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

What almost provoked this fight was heated difference of opinion over admitting 240,000 refugees into the U.S. McCarran angrily charged that the bill was written by the "displaced-persons gang."

"There is no proof of that, and I think it is untrue," shot back Dirksen, who represents a city, Chicago, with more Poles than Warsaw.

McCarran, his Irish dander up, leaped to his feet and shouted: "I consider that a personal insult."

"It isn't meant as an insult to the distinguished senator," soothed Dirksen in his most syrupy tones.

"I think the language was a bit strong," broke in Idaho's GOP Sen. Herman Welker, siding with McCarran.

By this time the little Nevada Democrat was sputtering and fluttering like a cock rooster.

"I want you to know I am not going to take this," McCarran screamed at the barrel-chested senator from Illinois. "Your size doesn't make any difference."

He then offered to settle the matter man-to-man, though he shouted his defiance from the safety of the opposite side of the table, making no move to carry his challenge over to Dirksen's side.

However, the Illinois senator, still unruffled, blandly replied: "I'm too much of a gentleman to take you on."

"If any language of mine was interpreted as casting aspersions on the distinguished senator from Nevada, I am sorry."

His honor thus satisfied, McCarran lowered his fist, slowly simmered down.

Reds Successfully Use 'Brainwash' Technique

WASHINGTON—Soon the American prisoners of war in Korea will be coming home. Bearing the scars of a long and painful ordeal, they deserve not only from the authorities charged with their rehabilitation but from each and every one of us the utmost in understanding and sympathy.

When the wounded and sick were returned three months ago, a blunder caused bad feeling all around. Inept Army public relations offices referred to some of the former prisoners as "mental patients." They were isolated for a time in the Valley Forge Army Hospital.

The scars some of these men bear will, it is true, be mental. It is known that they have been subjected to "brain washing," a phrase applied by the Chinese to a technique originated by the Russian Communists. This is a method for emptying the contents of the brain and substituting the propaganda line desired by the "brain washing" team.

Insomuch as it is known, the technique consists of prolonged interrogation for weeks and, if necessary, months. Wakened at intervals night after night and subjected to the same questions and the same repeated insistence on the Communist "truth," the victim's resistance is wholly broken down. He comes in time to repeat parrot-like "facts" that before the ordeal he knew full well to be lies. Physical torture, with exception of bright lights trained on the victims, figures little if at all in the process.

The more that is known about this diabolical technique, the greater should be our understanding for and patience with those subjected to it.

This reporter has been permitted to see a film which illustrates how successful the technique can be. It is a Chinese Communist propaganda film shown throughout the Soviet orbit and in a dozen countries around the world, including Great Britain, India, New Zealand and Guatemala. While defense agencies have copies, the film is still considered classified, which is to say secret.

The first two-thirds of the picture shows allegedly germ-carrying insects and animals dropped in American "germ bombs." It also shows the investigative work in China of an international commission of scientific authorities, all carefully hand-picked, of course.

This part of the film is pretty crude. It would probably fool only those who wanted to be fooled.

But in the last third of the film, four young American Air Force officers "testify" before the international commission. They give their names, their home addresses and serial numbers. Careful checking against photographs shows there can be no doubt of their identity. Similarly the movement of their lips on the film has been checked against the sound track and no trick is involved.

These officers tell in detail how they were instructed to carry germ bombs. They name the bases from which they flew the germ bombs and where they dropped them. They look a little tense and they speak somewhat jerkily but otherwise they appear normal. Each man is shown facing a microphone at the end of a long table around which the members of the commission are sitting.

One of the officers, a young Southerner, ended his recital on an emotional note. In a Deep South accent after telling how "abhorrent" it was to him to drop germ bombs, he said:

"I'm not married. But when I go back I want to marry and I want to have a son and what will I tell my son I did in the war in Korea? Will I tell him I did this awful thing?"

Last February the propaganda radio at Peking put on what purported to be the voices of two captured Marine air officers giving similar details of germ warfare. Col. Frank H. Schwable and Major Roy H. Bley had been taken prisoners seven months before. Both broadcasts told how orders had come from the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington to Gen. Matthew Ridgway, then in command in Korea, to start germ warfare. They told of instructions to spread a belt of germs across North Korea to try to stop truck convoys carrying supplies to the Communist front.

All this was, of course, totally untrue. The United Nations repeatedly tried to persuade the Communists to allow the International Red Cross or a team of truly neutral investigators to look into the germ charges. All such requests were refused.

There had been fears that some of these brain-washed prisoners would elect to stay behind the Curtain. The Communists now have announced that all have elected to return. The greatest care and consideration must be given the victims of this sinister cruelty.

Those Shorts At The Ball Park

Just Wait For Autumn

Lincoln, Neb. To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I have read in The Star the pronouncement of my friend, Chris Kuhner, over his official signature as Lancaster County commissioner. That was some days ago, and it still leaves me a bit groggy.

As I interpret it, the venerable commissioner went out, on the County's time, to witness a baseball game, and was shocked to the depths of his official soul by the fact that some of the ladies present, as evidence of the "last full measure of devotion" to the local team, had left the privacy of their respective homes and rushed off across town to the ball park, forgetting, as a preliminary, to put on their duds. Thus far, with raucous enthusiasm, I say, "Hurrah for Chris Kuhner!"

But it is not Chris Kuhner, the individual, who writes to your paper. It is the official reaction of Chris Kuhner, our impressive County commissioner, to what his shocked eyes beheld, that still has me going around in circles.

At the ball park he sees sundry ladies with scanty habiliments. What is his reaction thereto? He turns savagely on the WCTU and the ministers! You would think, to read his official proclamation, that the bare-legged lady beside him was a sedate member of the WCTU, and that a minister on the other side of him was leering at her past the blushing cheeks of our County commissioner. That is the only possible supposition whereby to justify the violence and the objectives of his righteous wrath.

Particularly is this true, when he serves notice upon us covering constituents of his that next year he will vote for beer at the ball park.

Problem: Nakedness at the ball park. Solution: Beer for the ladies, and beer for the masculine observers! That surely is sumptuous! If ever a statesmanlike solution was announced locally, this is it. I am glad that Chris is not a fireman. If he were, he would rush out to every fire with a can of gasoline to sprinkle over the flames.

Chris Kuhner and I are good friends. I am glad to say. There are worse folks than Chris. I have met some of them in the old days when vacation wanderings used to take me far from Lincoln and Nebraska. He means well. He gets this way about this time every year. But soon the delicious days of our Nebraska autumn will be here, and he, and all of us, will recover from our midsummer madness; and we shall again forgive him and take him back into the church, and the preachers will vote him into honorary membership in the local Ministerial Union, and he will resume his activity in the Men's Auxiliary of the WCTU.

"Til then, patience.
T. F. A. WILLIAMS

Bladen, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I saw in The Star that a man in Sioux City was killed because he whistled at a woman in shorts.

It has gotten to where the woman and girls need a calling down, as to the way they dress. They should be hauled into court for questioning as to what they mean by coming down the streets dressed in shorts. Are they afraid that the people don't see enough? Or do they think the people are half-baked?

A mother that lets her daughter dress in shorts and go uptown in that kind of style needs a guardian. The weather is awfully hot, I'll admit, but any girl or woman can stand a sheer dress. And how much prettier and lady-like they would look to everybody concerned.

When I meet a girl in shorts on the street, I feel embarrassed and would like to turn my back. Something should be done with the women in shorts; in fact, they should be arrested.

D. M. C.

Men Are Savages

Lincoln, Neb. To the editor of The Lincoln Star: In regard to these shorts and halter articles that have appeared in "The People Speak," I have a few words to say.

I'm sure that all men admire and enjoy looking at women regardless of what they have on, but I, like most men, agree that there is a time and place to wear shorts and halters. For example, I stopped at a local business establishment and there were two women who had on the shortest of shorts. If they could have heard the comments made by the men around me they probably would think a long time before wearing them again.

Don't get me wrong, girls. I enjoy looking at your legs and all, but really, why don't you think a little longer next time before wearing shorts uptown? You're not doing it to satisfy a bunch of busybodies but for and to your own benefit. Maybe it would be different if most men weren't such savages.

This, too, girls: You find most generally the ones with the dirty remarks haven't had much bringing up. Until that time comes, if I were in your shorts and halters I'd keep them at home and the beach, etc. You're asking for trouble.

DANNY DANIELSON II

Shorts Or High Costs?

Lincoln, Neb. To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Presumably some Star readers set me down as a crank, but I was plumb glad to read recent letters dealing with beer and the semi-nude damsels now seen parading on our White Spot streets.

But what worries me most is the high cost of living, being born and dying.

I think it cost my Dad ten full-value bucks to bring me into this wicked world, and I grew big, lusty and strong when steak was 20 cents a pound, butter 10 cents, and eggs 5 cents a dozen.

But now I have a bigger carcass to feed, and a dollar's purchasing value about 45 cents, with steak costing almost a dollar per pound, butter 73 cents, and eggs 69 cents a dozen, it sure is a mighty perplexing problem to keep the old machinery going, and to have a half-decent funeral in the end.

Why are we letting down the bars to admit 200,000 DPs when there is not sufficient housing for red-blooded Americans? Does any one see the red light around the corner? — and believe me, "thar ain't no WPA on the other side either."

The present generation doesn't remember when Dad and Mom stood with the crowds at the relief counters, but the writing is on the wall, and it would be well for all of us to stop, look, and listen.

We Lost The War

Blair, Neb. To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The United States has just been defeated in a major war effort—for the first time in its history. The Reds actually have won the Korean War. Let us not delude ourselves. This so-called Eisenhower-Dulles engineered truce is not a truce with honor. It will not be the road to peace.

We have heard talk of Yalta—the Roosevelt appeasement—the Truman-Acheson appeasement. At least, in those so-called diplomatic fiascos, it seemed that we were gaining something. Not so, this time.

Does anyone think the Reds will give up an inch of what they have gained in North Korea? Does anyone think they will give up their ideas of world conquest? Does anyone think this truce (for political expediency) will culminate in peace?

We "ran out" on a people and a leader who were fighting for their independence. We are now trying to bribe them into compliance by giving or withholding money to help them rebuild. How vile can we get? We are voluntarily returning thousands of well-fed prisoners to them, while getting back hundreds.

Every week—yes, every day—from now on, will come charges and counter-charges of truce violation. Six months will find less than a beginning of the real stalling that will ultimately end in a major war, to which this Eisenhower-Dulles appeasement is but the resting period—the building period—sought by the Reds. And this is the change for the better, the cleanup of one mess and the start of another.

Art Of Concentration Has Hardly Been Lost

Concentration is the art of ignoring what other people are concentrating on while you concentrate on what they are ignoring. It has been developed to a high degree in my family.

Yesterday everybody was concentrating. Mrs. F. was concentrating on preparing dinner. Lee, our son, was concentrating on a newly obtained catalog depicting the glories of Stemwinding Splitseam Mfg. Co. boats. Merrill, our daughter, was deep in the technique of drawing a picture of a horse. I concentrated on their conversation. It took some doing!

"These peas are the worst Alex has ever sold me," Mrs. F. complained. "Little shriveled-up things! I ought to boil them for an hour."

"The round-bottomed ones are probably safest in rough water," Lee remarked, "but I'll bet they would bob around a lot."

Merrilee went on drawing her horse.

Mrs. F. disposed of the peas and said companionably, "Agnes says you've got to watch Alex all the time, or he'll sell you the vegetables that every one else has turned down, just so he can get rid of them."

"I wouldn't trust the ones with low stems," Lee added. "You have to keep them headed into the wind all the time, so's not to take a wave over the transom."

"What else can you expect, though," mused Mrs. F., "when people go around pinching things all the time?"

Merrilee straightened up, frowning, and took a critical look at her picture of a horse. She chewed her pencil and went to work again. Mrs. F. opened the oven and peered in. "There's too much fat on the roast," she grumbled.

"Those thin ribs don't give you much protection," Lee avowed. "A plastic covering would make the hull tougher."

"Helps the flavor, though," Mrs. F. said.

Merrilee studied her horse again, frowning. "His hoof," she announced, "is in the wrong place."

"Just right for gravy," Mrs. F. beamed.

"We could carry it on top of the car, too," Lee declared.

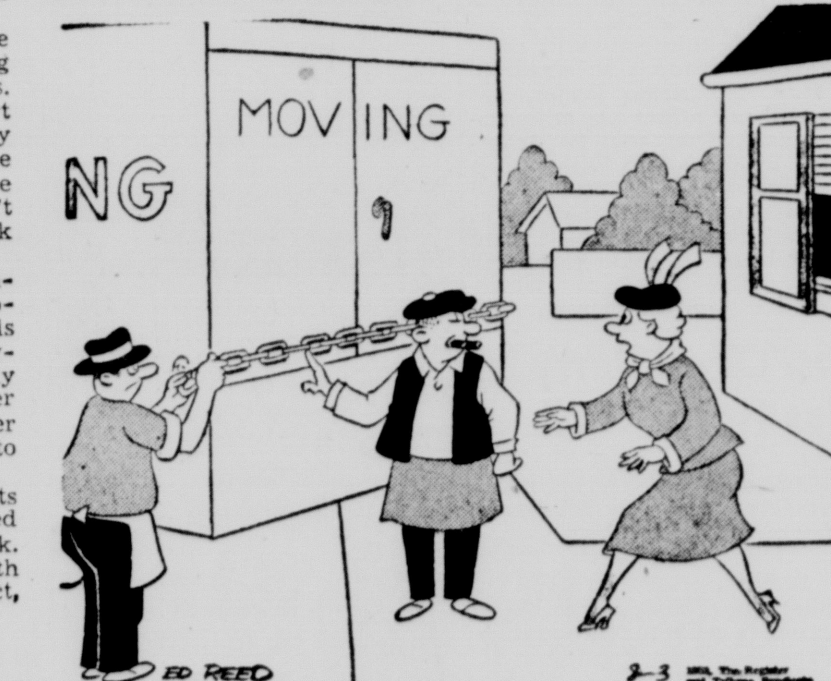

"This could have gone on for a long time, but just then there was a loud sound, half way between snarl and explosion, and everybody looked at me curiously."

"What's the matter with daddy?" Merrill asked.

Nobody else could tell her, and I was not in condition to do so. (Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate)

Historic Fort Hartsuff Awaits New Public Role

Stout Old Structures Still Intact

By JOHN SWANSON
Star Staff Writer

ORD, Neb.—One of the last relics of the era of Indian Wars in Nebraska has apparently turned the corner away from ruin and decay as the door is opened for its restoration and enjoyment by the public.

Old Fort Hartsuff, lying on about 12 acres of rolling Valley County land north of here, has been an object largely ignored by the public since its abandonment as an Indian War outpost by the government in 1881.

Dr. Glen D. Auble and his wife have offered the old buildings of the fort and land on which they lie to any governmental and public agency which will make the landmark a beneficial institution for all the people.

Before the fort came under Auble ownership several months ago it was used either as a tenant farm or was starkly vacant. Cattle, hogs and chickens were housed in the old structures of the fort, some of which still have the small wall apertures placed there for Indian fighting.

Since then Dr. Auble has taken the first steps toward making the old fort a center of recreational as well as historic interest. The owner points out that he never has barred the public from the fort area and has even gone to some expense to accommodate visitors.

He has placed picnic tables under the large old shade trees which border the former fort parade ground. A faucet brings running water to the grounds and weeds are being cut. Livestock are no longer housed in buildings but saddle horses belonging to Auble graze on the parade ground, keeping the grass neatly cropped.

Most prominent structure at the fort is a 16-room duplex, built to house officers' families but which could be classed as an excellent home even by present standards. Next to the duplex stands the charred brick remains of the commanding officer's home. It was destroyed by fire years ago but brick interior

Old Fort Building And Owner

Dr. Auble looks over one of the buildings on the Fort Hartsuff grounds. The structure once housed the post office when the fort was being structures have been converted into use as grain storage bins. The old guardhouse, postoffice, messhall, barracks, stables and quartermaster building are ranged around the parade ground. Built of a lime and gravel combination called grout by pioneers, the buildings are all in easily restorable condition.

Dr. Auble's choice of future use for the fort would be its conversion into a Boy Scout camp. He favors the Scouts because their ranks are open to persons of all creeds and races. "If the Boy Scouts had the place it would really be used and the boys would get a kick out of living in an old fort. If it were a national park, for instance, people would just walk in and out."

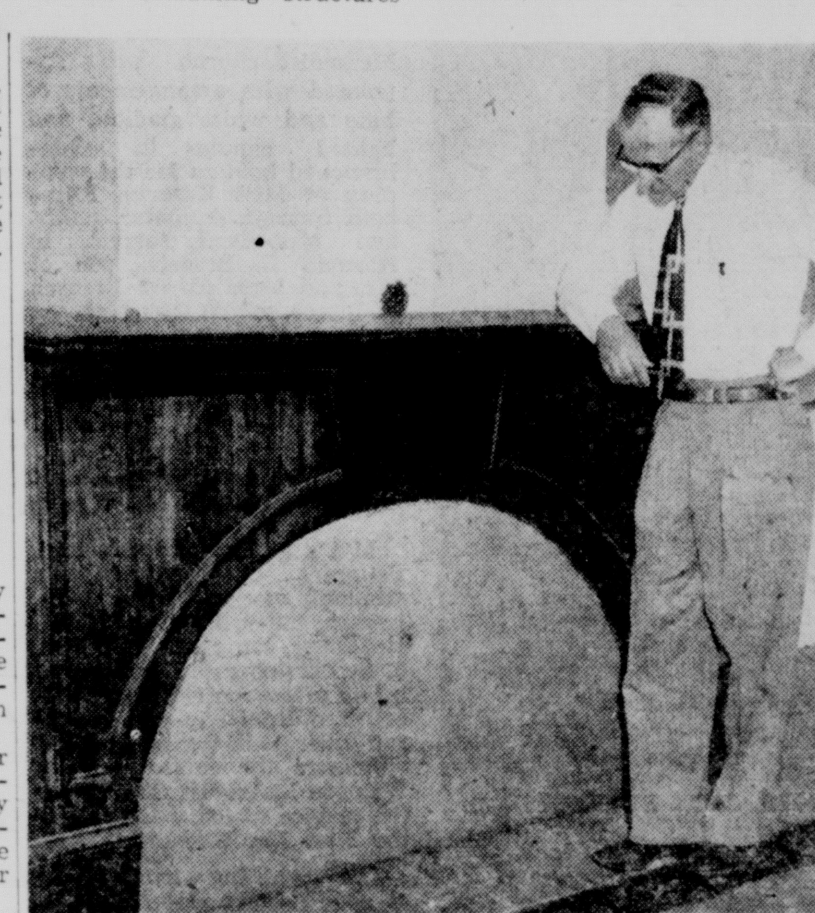

But Dr. Auble is especially anxious that some public organization does take over Fort Hartsuff and put it to good use. He points out that it is the last Indian fort in Nebraska on which buildings are still standing.

The fort was built in 1874 after Indians in the area had so harassed white settlers that many were moving out of their homesteads and returning to more heavily-settled regions further south.

The fort was actually in use as a government unit for only a few years and was never called upon for heavy fighting with the Indians. Because it was there, however, the region was settled years earlier than would have been possible otherwise.

on the grounds have been used from time to time as farm buildings. (Star Staff Photo.)

Still In Good Condition

Meet Kaiser's "Million Miler!"

He's Louis Prante, who has driven 929,000 miles, in "buffalo country" and is heading for his millionth mile in his 9th Kaiser!

Driving upwards of 325 miles a day over rugged, "Wild West" territory, Louis Prante, of Cody, Wyoming, knows cars as well as he knows his hilly two-state wholesale newspaper route.

And he picks Kaiser over all others for ruggedness... comfort... and low-cost!

Loads up to 2750 pounds!

"At present our car runs about 325 miles per day," he writes. "The load varies from 750 to 2750 pounds. Speeds range from 55 to 65 miles per hour."

"In this number of miles (929,000), we have not 'knocked out' either a rod or main bearing, have not replaced a clutch in any of these cars, and have not replaced a drive shaft or rear end."

Other make failed!

"During the period September, 1950 to April, 1951, I tried one of the 'Big Three' on this job and in a period of 60,000 miles we replaced one clutch, and all bearings in rear end and transmission."

"There may be other makes that will do as well for us, but I doubt that any will do better than the eight Kaisers we have used and our present Kaiser."

Signed Louis Prante

Town Talk

THERE'S a variety of town talk these days—Some of it involves tea table topics, and some of it spreads out over considerable territory—the cornfields, for instance—and speculation as to the yield per acre—down to the last kernel—The Chiefs—and those “just-no excuse-for-it” errors with the bases loaded—

BUT THOSE things, of course, are a long way from the tea table topics—which have to do with guests—current and potential—a homecoming or two—and there you are—Did hear that a certain young lady will be coming home from the east most any day now—and about time, since she is to be one of the popular autumn brides—

OUR HOMECOMERS are Mr. and Mrs. Don Stewart who returned the past week-end from Colorado Springs where they have been spending the past two weeks at the Broadmoor—

THEN—we learned that Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Thompson are home again after a vacation trek to northern Minnesota—Understand there was some pretty fancy fishing at Lake Marian, near Dent, Minn., after which Mr. and Mrs. Thompson went to Sunset Beach, Glenwood, Minn., for a few days stay before returning to Lincoln.

WHEN WE mentioned current guests we had in mind Mr. and Mrs. Don Kellogg (he is a Nebraska Beta) and their son, Stephen, who arrived from Los Angeles a few days ago for a visit with Mr. Kellogg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Kellogg, and his brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Unterscher.

Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg (she is the former JoAnn Lyman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lyman, formerly of Lincoln—and Kappa Kappa Gamma at the University of Nebraska) and their son plan to leave on Monday or Tuesday to return to the west coast.

OUR potential guest is Miss Elizabeth Kelley of Marengo, Ill., who will be arriving on Friday to spend some time as the house guest of her Ferry Hall classmate, Miss Anne Stebbins.

THE BASSINET circles have passed the word around that young Kent Seacrest arrived on Saturday, August 1, at Lincoln General Hospital—His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Seacrest, as you may already know—

Sunday Was The Wedding Day For These Brides

Mary Ann Lindauer Bride Of Dean Callan

In the presence of the members of the families, the marriage of Miss Mary Ann Lindauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard P. Lindauer of Omaha, and Dean Wellington Callan, son of Mrs. John S. Callan of Odell, and the late State Senator Callan, was solemnized Sunday afternoon, August 2. White and yellow chrysanthemums and gladioli, and lighted white candles, appointed the chancel of the Pearl Memorial Methodist Church at Omaha for the ceremony, which was read by the Rev. Glen W. Marshall.

Preceding the service, Miss Arlene Henni presented a prelude of organ music and accompanied Robert Johnson, vocalist. Miss Henni also played the wedding music.

The matron of honor was Mrs. John W. Lindauer of Portland, Ore., who wore a waltz-length frock of silk organdy in the mint green shade. Beneath the softly draped bodice, the skirt was caught into fullness, and her small cap was fashioned of matching organdy. She carried a cascade of yellow chrysanthemums. Wearing identical costumes of pale green organdy designed with full overskirts of white organdy were the flower girls, Miss Christine Lindauer, niece of the bride, and Miss Catherine Callan, niece of the bridegroom.

White nylon tulle over taffeta was chosen by the bride for her wedding gown. Appliques of Chantilly lace framed the deep illusion yoke of the bodice and continued into the brief sleeves of tulle. The lace motif was repeated on the flaring dance-length skirt, and the lace, dotted with seed pearls, fashioned the cap which held her illusion veil. She carried a white prayer book ornamented with a single white orchid.

Serving his brother as best man was Clair A. Callan of Odell, and seating the guests were John W. Lindauer of Portland, Ore., brother of the bride, and Milton W. Meyer of Lincoln.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the parlors of the church, after which a buffet supper was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Upon their return from a trip to Banff and Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies, Mr. and Mrs. Callan will reside in Odell. The bride wore for the ceremony a summer suit in navy blue with white accessories.

Mrs. Callan is a former student at Iowa State College, Ames, Ia., and the University of Nebraska, where she is a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority and Pi Lambda Theta honorary. The bridegroom also attended the University of Nebraska and is a member of Delta Upsilon.

Ceremony At Pender

The chancel of the First Presbyterian Church at Pender was appointed with white gladioli and palms for the marriage of Miss Darlene McQuistan, daughter of Mrs. Ralph Anderson of Pender, and Lieut. Gerald Robertson, of Lyons, which was solemnized at 4 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 2. In the presence of 200 guests, the Rev. A. P. Kidwell read the lines of the service.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Kenneth Robertson sang, accompanied by Mrs. William Biles Jr., organist, who also played the wedding music.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Kenneth Gilster of Omaha, and Miss Sally Murphy of Glenwood, Ia., was the bridesmaid. Costumed identically, the attendants wore frocks of imported tulle in the raspberry shade. White Chantilly-type lace veiled the tulle fashioned the fitted basques, and the tulle skirts were gathered into fullness. They carried bouquets of pastel-tinted Marguerite daisies. Wearing lime green tulle was the flower girl, Miss Jane Kratke of Bancroft.

White nylon tulle and imported lace over satin was chosen by the bride for her wedding gown. A fitted long-sleeved jacket of the lace, snugly buttoned to the high, pointed collar, covered the strapless bodice, and wide bands of the lace and tulle formed the very full waltz-length skirt. A bandeau of satin encrusted with seed pearls held her short veil of tulle. She carried a bouquet of white Fujii chrysanthemums centered with gold-throated orchids.

Kenneth Robertson of Tekamah served his brother as best man, and seating the guests were Pete Heintzelman of Lyons, Ed Raelcy of Waltham, and Kenneth Gilster of Omaha.

Following the reception held in the church parlors, the couple left for a trip to Colorado, later to reside at Ft. Riley, Kans., where the bridegroom is stationed with the army.

Mrs. Robertson, a graduate of the University of Nebraska and a member of Delta Delta Delta, wore for traveling a pearl-trimmed sheath frock of brown linen with black accessories. Also a graduate of the University of Nebraska, Lieut. Robertson is a member of Phi Gamma Delta.

Evening Ceremony

White candles burning in pedestal candelabra and arrangements of white gladioli formed the background for the marriage of Miss LaVonne Jean Dirksen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Dirksen, and Robert Kay Engelkemier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Engelkemier of Newkirk, Okla., which took place Sunday, August 2, at the College View Seventh Day Adventist Church. Elder A. A. Dirksen, grandfather of the bride, read the lines of the early evening service in the presence of 300 guests.

As the candles were lighted by Miss Dianne Dirksen and Miss Janelle Schmidt, costumed alike in yellow nylon sheer over matching satin, Ralph Watts sang accompanied by Miss Virginia Lee Glantz, organist, who also played the wedding music.

Mrs. Myron Hoyt was the matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Donna Chambers and Miss Kay Lewis. Miss Melody Joy Dirksen was the flower girl. The attendants wore white frocks of white embroidered organdy over taffeta shading from pale lavender to deep heather. They completed their costumes with heart-shaped bonnet brims of the organdy, and carried nosegays of summer blossoms.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and appeared in a gown of white satin and Chantilly-type lace. The lace-over-satin bodice was designed with a portrait neckline and long fitted sleeves, and the lace extended into the full skirt to form a wide front panel and continued at the hem to edge the chapel train. A halo of pleated lace held her illusion veil, and she carried a bouquet of white camellias centered with an orchid.

Chancellor Gillham served as best man, and the ushers were Lawrence Hunt of Keene, Tex., Don Engelkemier of Newkirk, Okla., Joe Engelkemier, Chapman Gillham and Richard Scott.

After a reception held in the parlors of the church the couple left for a wedding trip to the Black Hills and Yellowstone Park. For traveling the bride wore a white summer suit with black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Engelkemier, both former students at Union College, will make their home in Lincoln.

E. Scott, and Jack E. Butterfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Butterfield. The 3 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by Dr. Frank A. Court.

Kathryn Garrett Bride Of Norman L. Braasch

The chancel of the Trinity Methodist church was appointed with arrangements of blue and white gladioli, and lighted candles in seven-branched holders for the wedding of Miss Kathryn Elizabeth Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Garrett, to Norman L. Braasch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Braasch of Pierce, which took place on Sunday afternoon, August 2. Lighted candles and white satin bows, caught with sprays of greenery, marked the white carpeted processional aisle. The lines of the 4 o'clock service were read by Dr. Carl C. Bracy, chancellor of Nebraska Wesleyan University, in the presence of 200 guests, and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Jacqueline Weidner. Mrs. Weidner also accompanied Miss Janice Wagner who sang, "How Do I Love Thee"; and Thomas Bahe of Wayne, who sang, "I Love Thee".

Embroidered organdy in shades of blue was chosen for the costumes of the attendants including the maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Frantz of Goehner, who appeared in the pastel tone; and the bridesmaids, Miss Joyce Anderson of Beaver Crossing; Miss Carolyn Thomas of Detroit, Mich., cousin of the bride, and Miss Lynette Bush, whose frocks were in a deeper shade of blue. The slender, fitted bodices were fashioned with deep, rounded necklines that slipped into brief cap sleeves, and the floor-length skirts had accentuated fullness. Their nosegays were of carnations in frock-toned blue and white, and clusters of the blue carnations were worn in their hair. Miss Drew Ahl and Miss Sarah Cochran, the flower girls, wore long-skirted frocks of ice blue organdy, and carried nosegays of white carnations.

Donald Ballard of Norfolk served Mr. Braasch as best man, and seating the guests were Joseph Lafela of Omaha; Rudy Nelson, Houston, Tex., and Harry Johnson.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of imported Rose Point lace and tulle over taffeta. The empire bodice, with its Queen Anne collar and its molded mid-ribs, was fashioned of the lace which extended below the narrow waist to drift into three-quarter length over the voluminous skirt of tulle, worn over hoops and completed with a chapel train. A coronet of seed pearls and sequins held in place the tiered, shoulder-length veil, and she carried a white Bible marked with white orchids and stephanotis.

At the reception, held in the church parlors immediately following the ceremony, the refreshment tables were arranged with summer garden blossoms.

After a honeymoon trip to Denver, for which Mrs. Braasch wore a full-skirted frock in the French blue tone, with black accessories, Mr. Braasch and his bride will return to Lincoln where they will reside at 645 So. 16.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Ivan Lasher, organist, who also accompanied the bridegroom's sister, Miss Janet Boettcher, who sang "I Love Thee," and "Because," and John Poutre, who sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Wearing a ballerina frock in pale lavender was the maid of honor, Miss Jean Closs of Wymore. Cap sleeves and a mandarin collar accented the lace basque, and the full skirt was fashioned of tulle over taffeta. Costumed identically in green lace and tulle were the bridesmaid, Miss Joyce Arnold, and the bridesmatron, Mrs. Fred Stoll, of Wymore. The attendants wore headresses and mits of frocked-toned lace and carried fan-shaped bouquets of yellow daisies.

Robert Boettcher, brother of the bridegroom, and Larry Arnold lighted the chancel candles, and the ringbearer was Glen Lockhart, cousin of the bride.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown of ivory-toned tulle and imported Chantilly lace. The empire bodice of lace and horizontally tucked tulle was designed with cap sleeves and a tiny winged collar accenting the tucked bib-yoke. Beneath the fitted mid-ribs, the pleated skirt of tulle flared into extreme width at the hemline, and her illusion veil was held to the head by a circlet of lace and satin trimmed with clusters of pearlized blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white daisies and feathered carnations.

How This Delicious Laxative Cereal May Help You

Read how this user praises Uncle Sam Laxative Breakfast Food: "For many years, I had struggled with an aggravated case of constipation that required daily assistance for elimination. At the advice of a friend, in fact a doctor, I began using your product as sort of a last hope, and within two weeks seemed to be normal in every way and have had no trouble since."

—J.R.M., SOUTH DAKOTA.

Uncle Sam is a delicious ready-to-eat laxative cereal containing toasted whole wheat flakes and toasted whole flaxseed. Medical authorities have long recognized that flaxseed tends to stimulate peristaltic action of the intestines (bowel action). Flaxseed helps serve as a LUBRICANT.

Uncle Sam Laxative Breakfast Food has been a standby in thousands of homes for more than 40 years. Many people, both young and old, eat a serving of this delicious cereal daily, drink plenty of water, and thereby obtain the aid they need to keep regular.

If you need help, why not try Uncle Sam Laxative Breakfast Food.

You're the doctor! In your everyday grooming activities you use quite a few instruments—comb, brushes, files, scissors, tweezers, emery boards, etc. You'd insist that anyone using any of those things on you should have them scrupulously clean—sterile, in fact. Well, how clean do you keep your own beauty equipment? Make it a practice to regularly clean all the items mentioned and to change powder puffs often. A dirty puff can cause blackheads and pimples.
Then be sure and use a good perfume with just the right odor.

OWINGVILLE, Ky. — The mystery of the missing Greyhound bus was cleared when: 1. The $38,000 vehicle stolen in Cincinnati was abandoned at a railroad crossing and a freight train sliced it in two. 2. A former Greyhound mechanic, who officers said admitted taking the bus from the company parking lot, was arrested and held for Ohio authorities.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — R. R. Chambers, Birmingham detective and enthusiastic fisherman, may hold some kind of record for catfish caught on city streets. Chambers says a stranger mailed him and gave him the fish—explaining he had slipped off to fish without telling his wife and couldn't take his catch home with him.

BURBANK, Calif. — Howard T. Fairbanks, a gas station attendant, told startled police how he was robbed by phone. He said the telephone rang and a male voice told him: "Listen and you won't get hurt. You are being watched. Get the money from both tills, hurdle the back fence and you will find a paper sack. "Put the money in the sack and go back to the station and wait five minutes."

Fairbanks told police he followed instructions, found the sack, put $50 in it and called police five minutes later. Police found no trace of the money or the sack.

PORTSMOUTH, O. — Twenty dollars became just chicken feed for Ray Lintz. An employee at a mill at nearby Lucasville, Lintz was grinding chicken feed when his wallet containing $20 slipped from his overalls pocket into the feed grinder. Before he could stop the machine the wallet, money and all, had been ground into feed.

Lintz said he would send the bag containing the feed to Washington for analysis by Treasury Department experts in the hope that he can get some of his money back.

TORONTO — There was a burglary here at the scene of which were found 35 playing cards, including both jokers. Picked up later, a man named Brock Johnson had 19 playing cards in his jacket. Police booked him.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
